A small theatre company is in the middle of a work session. They are preparing a show about being free and doing what is right. In Cabezas de cartel we sneak in at a critical moment of the plays' creative process, in which ethical values will be confronted by the need to feel important.
Perigallo Teatro was founded in 2009 with the objective of staging our own texts about what we felt was important, what bothered us, moved us and overwhelmed us; and we try to do this through comedy and honesty. We believe that theatre is an instrument for social and personal improvement. We write and produce our plays based on the premise that audiences want to reflect and be moved at the same that they are entertained.
