The concert Hor ch'è tempo di dormire is a journey through the devotional music for Lent and Holy Week of the Italian seicento. Composers such as Giovanni Felice Sances, Claudio Monteverdi, Barbara Strozzi, Francesca Caccini and Frescobaldi will bring us the affects and dramatic power of a music written in the style of the Italian Seconda Pratica.

The Ensemble Escarramán was born out of the interest of María Calvo and Juanjo Monroy, professors at the conservatories of music of Malaga, for the historically informed performance of the late Renaissance and early Baroque repertoire. Their programmes are characterized by the inclusion of music composed by both men and women. The ensemble has performed at numerous festivals of ancient music throughout Spain, with the intention of providing the audience with a complete experience combining music with stories on the origins of the pieces they play.
