A window, a light. Another window, a routine. Another window, a building where three women talk about not being able to stop.

Everything caves in, comes apart. The damn eternal war!

Three female clowns who meet on the old road of exodus to recreate the world and give us back the pleasure of laughing at the smallest things, yet pointing to the wound when things annoy us. They live in the stories that have been explained in all the conflicts and use old clown numbers to reaffirm their desire to be comical. Three forgotten heroines who tell their story with the intention of laughing and making us laugh to live in our memory.

The Catalan actress and clown Pepa Plana is the soul and artistic director of La Cia. Pepa Plana, a company that is a national benchmark in its genre, and one of the most important in Europe, given the quality of its shows and its contribution to giving visibility to woman clowns.
