Tercer cielo is an album that stems from the collaboration between the flamenco singer/songwriter Rocío Márquez and the urban and electronic music producer Bronquio. A paradise at the threshold where the two artists have allowed themselves to explore from their respective musical backgrounds on a journey from the known to the unknown, from tradition to creation. The result is a unique language that transcends the hermetic compartments of musical genres to continue extending the flamenco of the 21st century.

Rocío Márquez (Huelva, 1985) is a clear reference point and consolidated figure in the world of flamenco. Her restless personality and enormous curiosity are evidenced in her nine albums, which reveal in a transversal manner her immense love for flamenco tradition as an overriding need to broaden its limits by exploring and experimenting with melodies, instruments, arrangements and lyrics. She is the first woman to obtain the four specific awards, plus the Lámpara Minera, at the Flamenco Festival Cante de Las Minas de La Unión and to win the French award Les Victoires du Jazz, which recognises for the first time as well a flamenco record in the category of World Music. Moreover, she is the first woman to receive the Gold Medal of la Petenera (a type of flamenco song).

The creator from Jerez Santiago Gonzalo AKA Bronquio is a young punk musician and one of the sensations of the Spanish electronic musical scene. He has published 3 EPs, the last of which (Vol. 3) with the collaboration of Nita (Fuel Fandango) and Cris Lizarraga (Belako),. He is also the author of the sound track of the film Las gentiles (Santi Amodeo, 2021). As producer, he has worked with Kiko Veneno, Natalia Lacunza and Anaju. In 2020 he was elected for Artistas En Ruta (AIE) and also for the AECID Escenario Catalogue of performing arts and music commissioned by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, European Union and Cooperation.
